SEX AND RELATIONSHIP EDUCATION POLICY

SPRING COMMON ACADEMY TRUST
AMERICAN LANE, HUNTINGDON, CAMBRIDGESHIRE PE29 1TQ

OVERALL AIMS

Our overall aim is to encourage pupils to do things for themselves, promote confidence and develop within each pupil the ability to make clear, everyday decisions and choices and to act upon these choices. We aim to create a safe, supportive and caring community for everyone where we recognise every step and change taken by everyone and make our school a real community where everyone feels they belong. WHAT IS SRE?

Sex and Relationship Education (SRE) is an area of pupil learning that:

- Is developed through a taught and planned series of activities within the curriculum, normally as part of PSHE.
- Is also explored through other classroom work such as story telling, circle time and drama.
- Contains many relationship issues which are addressed in one to one interactions with staff throughout the day as well as chances for socialising and getting on with others that pupils have through both planned learning activities and 'play' and leisure activities.
- Underpins other parts of the school day such as assemblies and meal or snack times offer other learning possibilities through changing social interactions.

SPECIAL CONSIDERATIONS

We share the belief that "All people are sexual beings whatever their learning ability" and as such have the same value, the same needs and the same civil rights as any member of our society. They have the right to enjoy their sexuality, to have the freedom to practice it and to have it recognised by others.

Sexuality is not limited to sexual practice, but it is also a way of expressing personality. Children and young people with learning difficulties show the same interest in sexual activity as everyone else.

The pupils have a need for and right to:

- Clear practical information and guidance.
- Personal and social skills to enable them to develop relationships independently.
- Guidance on appropriate sexual behaviour.
- Within the limits of the law, the sexual preferences of our pupils will be respected and supported.

AIMS AND OBJECTIVES

To help pupils:

- Form and maintain relationships of all kinds with peers, family members, carers and friends.
- Understand and learn social boundaries – what is and what is not acceptable.
- Understand the feelings they may have and how to express them appropriately.
- Know about the ways their bodies work and the changes as they grow.
- Increase self-awareness and facilitate a development of self-advocacy.
- Develop interpersonal, decision making and assertiveness skills.
- Develop the skills to recognise and reduce the risk of abuse and exploitation.

RESPECTING DIFFERENCE AND DIVERSITY

We aim to provide an environment that is free from discrimination on any grounds including gender, race, ethnicity, colour, nationality, disability, sexual orientation, age, religious or political belief.

Believe that we all benefit from an approach that recognises each learner may be at a different stage of emotional, social, physical, personal and intellectual growth and therefore pupils require their opportunities to learn to be adapted within the same curriculum.

When teaching SRE we acknowledge that individual families will have their own cultural diversity and ethos in relation to human sexuality and sexual relationships.

We cannot deliver individualised moral guidance to pupils but will ensure that the SRE delivered is never value free and we will support parents in how best they may approach moral issues with their child if they wish.

THE MORAL AND VALUES FRAMEWORK

The DfES Guidance states that SRE should contribute to promoting the spiritual, moral, cultural, mental and physical development of students and that it should stress the importance of marriage for family life, stable and loving relationships, respect, love and care and the teaching of sex, sexuality and sexual health.

To ensure that when talking about human sexuality we locate sexual activity with others firmly in the context of a marriage or loving and stable relationship.

Among the values promoted are:

- Respect for oneself and other people
- Responsibility for one's actions
- Responsibilities within the family
- Sensitivity towards the needs and views of others
- Recognising the implications and risks of certain types of behaviour
- Recognising and accepting the differences of others

PARENTAL RIGHT TO WITHDRAW THEIR CHILD

Parents have the right by law to withdraw their child from all or part of the SRE programme except those elements covered by the National Curriculum. SRE is compulsory at KS4. Any parent who wishes to withdraw their child should speak to their teacher to talk through concerns and the changes they wish to make. All requests will be met sympathetically and all effort will be made to ensure the pupil retains their access to all acceptable areas of the SRE programme.

At Spring Common Academy:

- We accept that all people are sexual beings, whatever their learning and/or physical impairment and that any consenting disabled young people who wish to have a sexual relationship should be allowed to do so within the limits of the law. Throughout the development and delivery of SRE programmes the school remains mindful of the pupils' individual ability in the area of communication and use of augmentative communication aids, their ability to make judgements and to give informed consent and how these will impact on the content presented to meet their individual needs.
- Disabled young people are likely to show the same sexual preferences, including those for the same sex, and the same varieties of sexual behaviour as other members of society. Within the limits of the law, these preferences will be respected and supported.
- Disabled young people have the right to full sexual relationships including sexual intercourse, in their personal life and the right to carry these out in private.
- Masturbation is normal sexual behaviour. Disabled young people will not be made to feel guilty about masturbation, nor be prevented from doing it in private.

- Pupils will undertake modules on public/private places and private body parts. Pupils are supported to develop their understanding of appropriate actions and behaviours.
- We recognise that intimate personal care will be available from staff. We will inform parents about the arrangements.
- Whilst we support the view that forming intimate relationships is an important part of emotional development, as a schools setting, appropriate behaviour for a public venue is always reinforced. Within the context of SRE sessions the nature of more intimate relationships may be explored, this may be done on an individual basis.
- All opportunities will be used, within a planned structure, to model and encourage appropriate forms of social behaviour and to develop understanding of the difference between public and private activities and places.
- Disabled young people have a right to privacy and to be treated with respect. The pupil's privacy is respected and accepted by all members of staff. Pupils are encouraged to respect the privacy of their peers.
- The right to make relationships includes the right to make mistakes. Our young people are to be supported in taking opportunities for relationships and sexual activity even if this involves an element of risk such as the risk of rejection, while minimising the risk of harm.
- The right to engage in sexual relationships in their personal life is accompanied by the right to information about contraception and safer sex practices. The young person's choice in these matters will be paramount.
- The SRE programme is shared with parents/carers and appropriate modules are developed from this taking into account individual needs.
- Contraceptive education is one of the options considered.
- If discussing sexual intimacy in relation to an individual, condom use will be strongly encouraged.
- Relationship and Sex Education at KS3 and 4 may be taught in groups according to their ability to access the information rather than tutor groups.

- As with all elements of our programme, content is based on individual development taking into account individual needs. Personal hygiene is routinely covered within the programme.
- The curriculum encourages pupils to make choices necessary for good health and supports pupils in expressing themselves if they are unwell. Pupils are supported by having a school nurse on site and are encouraged to seek her advice if feeling unwell.
- A programme of SRE is available and offered to all pupils to enhance their understanding and skills in personal relationships.
- The overriding principle is the importance and value of partnership.
- The involvement and support of parents and carers can be invaluable in enhancing pupil's learning, understanding and skills in the area of personal relationships and sexuality. We feel that parents and carers are essential in supporting the SRE programme. If this is to be maximised, open, honest and clear discussion needs to be held between staff delivering the programme and parents/carers. A common language will be used and learning which takes place in the SRE programme can be reinforced by family and home.
- Before the delivery of more explicit modules in the upper school a letter is sent home outlining the content of the unit of work. Annual training for parents will be provided by the school's SRE Co-ordinator.
- Individual pupils may have specific objectives and these would be shared with parents and carers through discussion, IEPs, Personal Care Risk Assessments or Pupil Support information. The school will seek the advice of the school nurse and other professionals if appropriate.
- All staff share responsibility, directly or indirectly, for allowing young people to express their sexuality and for helping them to understand about relationships and sex. Any member of staff who has queries about or difficulties in supporting or being actively engaged in the programme should see the Headteacher or the SRE Co-ordinator.
- Training for all members of staff is central to the recommendations of this policy. Staff will be supported in any aspect of their work, which concerns relationships and sexuality.
